Levels Show National Improvement

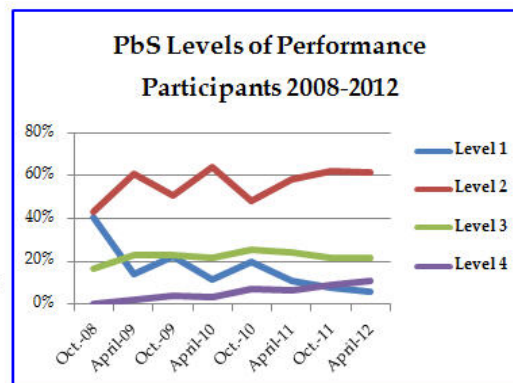

by Kim Godfrey, Executive Director

Congratulations to all PbS participants!

The April 2012 PbS improvement cycle is moving into site report analysis and facility improvement planning – the heart of PbS. While you've been looking at outcome measures, alignment of daily practices with mission and changes since last October, the PbS team has been reviewing the national data and I am very pleased to share a few highlights.

PbS is committed to treating youths in custody as one of our own. We are continually looking at information, data and indicators of the quality of life in facilities and residential programs.

One tool we use to assess our impact is an aggregate analysis of the participants' levels of performance. As you know, PbS created four levels designation to guide participants through incremental integration of PbS and sustainable positive change:

- Level 1 assures facilities meet PbS definitions, sample size and process requirements;
- Level 2 focuses on achieving successful safety and health outcomes;
- Level 3 focuses on achieving successful programming, reintegration and fairness outcomes; and
- Level 4 signifies a mentor program that has mastered all of the previous levels.
